Welcome to the DarrasLaw newsletter.

Hello,

This holiday season all of us at DarrasLaw are thankful to those who are clients and close friends of our firm. As we value relationships we have already built and those we will build into the future, we make it our goal to provide helpful insight and information when it comes to insurance matters. Here is information on Long Term Care that may be useful. Read this article in USA Today

Disability Insurance for Olympic Athletes

With the Sochi Olympics approaching, athletes from around the world showcase daredevil feats while careening across ice and snow, with little regard for the powers of gravity. Unlike the many minor injuries witnessed during an average Sunday night football game, most injuries at the Winter Olympics are traumatic.

Mr. Darras,

My husband and I want to take this opportunity to formally thank you and the DarrasLaw staff for your compassionate care in handling our disability case. Your law firm truly cares for the people you represent, not just the case you are handling.

We are so thankful that we found your law firm to handle our case and achieve the successful outcome.

May God Bless you and all of you at DarrasLaw.

Social Media Dangers

While traveling this season, remember to be careful on social media. There's nothing more pleasing to a burglar than signs no one is home; lights off, lawn not cut, mail and newspapers piling up and the curtains drawn.

Avoid making a crucial mistake this holiday by advertising your travel plans on social media. In a few seconds, a status update can lead to weeks and months of heartache and repair if the wrong eyes read that post. There have also been reports that opportunists can track down an address from a website posting within 60 seconds. So be careful not to post, "packing my bags" or "just landed", when you arrive at your vacation destination. Popular geo-tracking apps, such as FourSquare and Glympse, might be signaling burglars that you're not home.

QUESTION:

What is an IME?

ANSWER:

An IME is an independent medical examiner, likely hired by the insurance company to review your medical records and possibly provide a physical exam.
